EARTHQUAKE PERIOD RULES BULGARIA, GREECE

COMPLETELY DAMAGED BUILDINGS IN BULGARIA NUMBER 13,800

PLANS FOR RECONSTRUCTION WORK IN GREECE UNDER WAY

London, April 30.—(UP)—More than 100 persons were killed, more than two hundred thousand are homeless and thousands of houses were wrecked as result of the recent earthquake period in Bulgaria.

The figures listed by the correspondent were:

Dead—103.
Injured—672.
Completely damaged buildings—13,800.

Partly damaged buildings—13,300.
Homeless—295,000.

The Daily Mail Athens correspondent said that plans for reconstruction in the earthquake area in Greece already were well under way.

The government, according to the Athens dispatch, has decided to rebuild Corinth and in doing so will float a loan of 1,500,000 pounds sterling.

It will be the fourth rebuilding of Corinth since the early days when the ancient city was sacked. The ancient city, about three miles from the new Corinth destroyed a week ago, was ruined by an earthquake in 1858.

Athens, April 30.—New casualties were reported today from the Corinth vicinity where fresh strong earthquake shocks were felt Sunday.

Hundreds of houses in the city—most destroyed by the recent series of earthquakes—collapsed at the force of the new tremors. Many villages through the Corinth district reported great damage.

Inhabitants of these small villages were panic stricken. Hundreds slept in the open Sunday night fearing new shocks might cause additional houses and buildings to collapse.

It was reported here that a passenger train, about 100 miles from Corinth, was damaged by the latest disturbances and that it was almost derailed.

A hundred houses in the small town of Kiato on the Corinth-Patras line collapsed. Other great damage was reported from Xylocastro, Loutraki. Remnants of houses fell in Corinth.

MOST FAMOUS PLANE IN WORLD ON LAST FLIGHT

COL. CHAS. A. LINDBERGH OFF WITH "SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS"

TO TURN PLANE OVER TO THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION

By FOSTER EATON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Louis, Mo., April 30.—The most famous plane in the world with the most famous aviator at the controls took off from here today on probably its last flight.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh gave the gun to his beloved "Spirit of St. Louis" at 9 A. M., soared aloft from Lambert Field and headed for Washington where he will turn the plane over to the Smithsonian Institution.

The plane in which Lindbergh alone spanned the Atlantic from New York to Paris not quite a year ago bore sufficient gas for a nonstop flight to Bolling Field, but Lindbergh was not sure he would drive the ship that hard.

"I may stop en route," he told the United Press.

While in the east, Lindbergh plans to meet the German-Irish crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen.

"I am looking forward very much to meeting them," he said.

Lindbergh's take-off was typical of the "We" known probably in more countries than any other plane in history. He swung into the wind, headed west, and swung to the east.

Next month Lindbergh is expected to return here in his new plane—which he left east on his last visit there—to participate in ceremonies commemorating the first anniversary of his trans-Atlantic flight. He returned to St. Louis last night in a Curtis Robin monoplane.

Washington, April 30.—Charles A. Lindbergh's plane, Spirit of St. Louis, will have an honored place in the Smithsonian Institution, where it may be commonly visited by tourists as Washington's Monument, the capitol and other "sights" of this city.

It will be suspended from the ceiling of one of the institution's main buildings, along with the Langley plane designed to fly in 1903 but not flown until 1914. Battle planes used in the war will surround it.

War-time regalia, guns and cannon of famous generals and admirals occupy floor space in the building.

White River's Rise Threatens Levees and 700 Men Work Feverishly to Save Territory

NEW YORK GIVES CHEERS FOR THE CREW OF BREMEN

FLAGS OF U. S., GERMANY AND IRISH FREE STATE ARE UNFURLED

NEW YORK TURNS OUT EN MASSE TO HONOR THE AVIATORS

By EARL JOHNSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, April 30.—Ten years after the end of the great war between Germany and the Allies, two former German soldiers and an Irish veteran of the allied air forces paraded in peaceful triumph through the streets of New York today.

While hundreds of thousands cheered their passing and millions more listened in on the celebration by radio, Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld, Major James Fitzmaurice and Capt. Hermann Koehl were carried along the route where the eighty-ninth division and General John J. Pershing were feted when they returned from war.

Flags of the United States, Germany and the Irish Free State were unfurled for the three men who were first to complete a westward airplane flight across the north Atlantic ocean—a feat that won them a reception such as New York alone knows how to bestow upon her visiting heroes.

Some of the 10,000 United States soldiers and sailors who took part in the greeting may have projected their minds back to the days of 1918, but former animosities were forgotten.

New York turned out en masse to honor the aviators. Lower Broadway from the Battery to Ninth Street was packed with people. Fifth Avenue as far up as Central Park was crowded from curb to building fronts. The program for the Bremen fliers was even more elaborate than the one arranged for the homecoming of Lindbergh last summer.

Accompanied by Grover Whalen, chairman of the mayor's reception committee, the fliers left the Ritz-Carlton hotel at 10:45 A. M. An escort of motorcycle policemen cut a path for the official car through the dense crowd between the hotel and the North river pier where they boarded the Macon, the city's welcoming tug for their trip down the river to the Statue of Liberty.

The trip across town to the pier gave the fliers a taste of what was in store for them. Miniature mob scenes were enacted as spectators fought with each other and with police for points of vantage.

Torn paper rained down from the upper stories of skyscrapers along the way. Cheering followed in the wake of the roaring motorcycles. Pages from Gideon Bibles and telephone directories were found among debris that had been thrown from hotel windows.

The Baron and Captain Koehl were dressed in double-breasted blue suits and wore military caps which they doffed repeatedly to the cheering crowds. Major Fitzmaurice was in the uniform of the Irish Free State flying corps.

New York, April 30.—New York City today opened its arms in welcome to the wives of two of the fliers of the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen, who arrived in time to share with their husbands the city's elaborate tribute.

Both bewildered, yet outwardly showing pleasure at their reception, Mrs. Hermann Koehl and Mrs. James Fitzmaurice stepped ashore at Battery Park from the reception tug Riverside, which had brought them in from the steamer Dresden at quarantine.

Mrs. Fitzmaurice was accompanied by her little daughter, Patricia. Her constant smile made her the center of interest on the trip from quarantine to the pier.

The Riverside, bearing a reception committee composed of Mrs. Clarence Chamberlin, wife of the trans-Atlantic aviator; Miss Doris Lindsay Crawford, daughter of the Irish Free State trade representative here; Miss Christy Kesselmeier, daughter of Rudolph Kesselmeier, North German Lloyd traffic manager, George Gys-

FREIGHT VESSEL RIDES HELPLESSLY, OUT OF FUEL

Norfolk, Va., April 30.—(UP)—The freight vessel Western Ocean again today was riding helplessly through the Atlantic without fuel. The Western Ocean became stranded last week and the coast guard cutters Mascoutin and Carabasset were sent to its relief. They found the vessel and started towing it to port.

Sunday it broke loose during a high wind and the coast guard boats had to put into port.

Fumes apparently were seeping from the container and as the match ignited there was a terrific explosion. The five boys were deluged with blazing benzine.

NATION'S CAPITAL FACES FLOOD TODAY

POTOMAC RIVER RISING RAPIDLY FROM UNSEASONAL SNOWS

Washington, April 30.—(UP)—The nation's capital, scene of flood control legislation for the Mississippi valley, itself faced a flood today.

Unseasonal snows in West Virginia and Maryland were melting and sending unwonted waters into tributaries of the Potomac river. That stream was rising rapidly and overflowing in some places.

At Great Falls, nine miles above Washington, the river stage was reported 25 feet above normal today.

CONEY ISLAND LOSES 8 FOOT BOA CONSTRUCTOR

New York, April 30.—(UP)—Coney Island went about its business gingerly today, not knowing when it might be confronted by an eight-foot boa constrictor.

The snake escaped from a side-show yesterday, slithering quietly out of its glass cage before Mme. Belle Bonita, the charmer knew it was gone.

Police were more alarmed by the disappearance of the snake than by most Coney Island "missing" cases. Only Mme. Bonita was calm.

"It just went out for a walk," she said this morning. "I am expecting it to return any minute."

German vice consul and A. L. Mehan, a member of the mayor's committee, waited in the shadow of the Fort Wadsworth at the mouth of the harbor for the Dresden, which was an hour overdue.

The reception committee, carrying two enormous bouquets of red and tea roses, went aboard and in a few minutes appeared on deck with the wives of the fliers.

Both smiled and waved at the reporters on the Riverside, and then posed for pictures.

Mrs. Koehl speaks very little English and talked to reporters in German.

CREST OF FLOOD TO BE REACHED BY SATURDAY

BACKWATER BETWEEN BISCOE AND CLARENDON SPREADS 13 MILES

DEPTH OF WATER THERE SAID TO RANGE FROM 1 TO 15 FEET

Devals Bluffs, Ark., April 30.—(UP)—Seven hundred men, under direction of five government engineers, today were trying to raise Jackson's Bayou and Georgetown levees with sandbags faster than White river's slow rise.

With the stage today at 27.9, it is not believed the crest will go to 30 feet, as forecast Saturday.

Backwater already covers the territory between Biscoe and Clarendon, a distance of 13 miles, from one to 15 feet deep.

Several hundred Madison and Prairie county farmers have moved their families and livestock to higher ground. Their crops in most instances have been ruined.

Engineers believe the levees will hold and prevent further destruction.

Washington, April 30.—Congress this week will prepare two measures—flood control and farm relief—for presentation to President Coolidge, who has criticized both.

Leaders at the capitol confidently expect his veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, upon which the house will resume general debate today, but there is some hope that the Mississippi flood control bill as it comes from the conference which began today will be sufficiently acceptable to receive the president's signature.

Final congressional action is expected this week on the Jones-Reid flood bill. The ten conferees of the house and senate will seek to adjust differences as early as possible. Their work must be confirmed by both bodies before the measure can be sent to the White House.

Final action on the farm relief bill is doubtful. Several hours of debate are left in the house. The measure should be passed by the middle or last part of the week, as it is the plan to have night sessions to speed up consideration. The bill then will have to go to conference to adjust differences between the Haugen measure and the McNary bill approved by the senate a few weeks ago.

Outside of the tax bill, these two are the most important and significant measures to come before congress this session. Their importance has been enhanced by the differences on both between congress and the president, for they have taken on a wider political significance because of the disagreement.

Presidential politics has been injected into debate on both measures, the charge has been made several times that the main purpose in pressing the McNary-Haugen bill again in the face of the president's open and continued disapproval is to make political capital for the Lowden and Dawes movements among farmers and at the same time to embarrass the candidacy of Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who opposes the McNary-Haugen bill.

Political observers also have speculated upon the effect a veto of the flood bill might have upon the Hoover candidacy, since Hoover won considerable favor last spring by his relief work in the flood-stricken areas.

Atlanta, Ga., April 30.—With 12 dead, 8,000 temporarily homeless and damage estimated at $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, the south's flood, wind and frost ravages appeared on the decline today.

Danger remained in the fertile Tom Bigbee river valley in Alabama, however, with thousands of acres of cotton lands inundated and the crest of the flood not expected to be reached for another 24 hours. Thousands were homeless.

Warm sunshine was widespread in other Georgia sections, and in Florida, where wind storms took a heavy toll last week. Frosts did some damage to crops in the Carolinas and in south Georgia.

The White river in Arkansas threatened to spread over the levee near Des Arc.

HUNDREDS IN SILENT TRIBUTE TO CONGRESSMAN

FILE PAST COFFIN OF THE LATE REPRESENTATIVE MARTIN B. MADDEN

MADDEN'S 23 YEARS OF SERVICE IN HOUSE PRAISED IN EULOGIES

Washington, April 30.—(UP)—Hundreds filed past the coffin at the conclusion of the state funeral in the house chamber yesterday for Martin B. Madden of Illinois, who will be buried in Hinsdale, Ill., today.

President and Mrs. Coolidge, Vice-President Dawes, the cabinet, supreme court, diplomatic corps, senators and members of the house were present for the honor, which has been accorded few statesmen in the country's history.

Madden's 23 years of service in the house were praised by Vice-President Dawes and Rep. Joseph W. Byrnes, Tenn., ranking democrat on the house appropriations committee, of which Madden was chairman.

Many negroes sat in a special section of the gallery reserved for them. One of them, Paul Gainey, fainted during the service and had to be carried out. He had been appointed a post office inspector through Madden's influence.

Madden's Chicago district is largely populated by negroes. A negro is expected to succeed to his seat.

New York, April 30.—(UP)—Sudden marriage may have saved the life of Miss Louise Gosey, 18-year-old physical culture instructor.

She was near death in a Long Island City sanatorium yesterday when Salem D. Maud, her fiancé, asked her physician if he thought getting married would do her any harm.

"It might be stimulating," said the doctor.

Physicians said today that Mrs. Salem D. Maud probably would recover from the illness that she had contracted as Miss Louise Gosey.

Five specialists worked on Patten shortly after midnight when he was taken to Memorial hospital, although medical science concedes it is almost impossible to save a person's life after the jugular vein is cut.

TWO BRITISH BATTLESHIPS ON TO EGYPT

SENT AS PRECAUTIONARY MEASURE IN VIEW OF TROUBLE THERE

BRITISH ULTIMATUM ON PUBLIC ASSEMBLIES EXPIRES ON WEDNESDAY

Malta, April 30.—(UP)—The British battleships Warspite and Valiant and the cruisers Ceres and Calypso sailed at 9 A. M. today, and it was reported they were en route to Egypt as a precautionary measure in view of the crisis there.

It was stated officially the ships were en route to Corinth to relieve the aircraft carrier Eagle, doing earthquake relief work there, but the belief persisted that the ships would go to Alexandria.

Cairo, April 30.—The British ultimatum to the Egyptian government ordering the latter to withdraw the public assemblies bill expires Wednesday at 7 P. M., it was understood today.

The cabinet headed by Premier Nubas Pasha was reported to have held a hurried meeting today to discuss the ultimatum. The cabinet, according to most reliable information, decided to "pursue the policy specified when it accepted power."

This would indicate that in the face of the British admiralty order sending the two battleships and two cruisers to Alexandria from Malta, the cabinet had decided to stand unflinchingly by its measure.

The political situation created by the bill and the ultimatum is tense. Egyptian circles generally affirm that Premier Pasha is resolved to resist the British demands. He will refuse to resign, according to the most authoritative opinion.

Failure to withdraw the public assemblies bill, as demanded in the note, will be followed by seizure of the Egyptian customs.

The assemblies bill gives absolute freedom of public assembly to demonstrators and deprives the police of power they now hold to prevent "unlawful" assemblies, or even to disperse them otherwise with assemblies would be liable to punishment.

Great Britain's objection to the bill is based upon one of the points she reserved to herself in her proclamation of Egyptian independence in 1922—the one by which she would continue to protect foreign interests.

Most of the assemblies in Cairo are in protest against alleged British domination, and nearly all have an anti-British tinge. Britain argues that by permitting assemblies now and encourage rioting Egyptian government would paralyze the police and encourage rioting and general disorder. Foreigners, she holds, would be menaced.

Malta, April 30.—The British battleships Warspite and Valiant and the cruisers Ceres and Calypso sailed today for Alexandria as "a precautionary measure."

London, April 30.—Sir Austin Chamberlain, foreign minister, announced in the house of commons today that Britain had demanded written assurance from Egypt that the assemblies bill, objectionable to England, will be withdrawn.

Egypt was given until 7 P. M. on Wednesday to answer the demand, Chamberlain said. If the demand is not met, England will feel free to take whatever action the government deems necessary.

Washington, April 30.—(UP)—The nation's capital, scene of flood control legislation for the Mississippi valley, itself faced a flood today.

Unseasonal snows in West Virginia and Maryland were melting and sending unwanted waters into tributaries of the Potomac river. That stream was rising rapidly and overflowing in some places.

At Great Falls, nine miles above Washington, the river stage was reported 25 feet above normal today.

CONEY ISLAND LOSES 8 FOOT BOA CONSTRICTOR

New York, April 30.—(UP)—Coney Island went about its business gingerly today, not knowing when it might be confronted by an eight-foot boa constrictor.

The snake escaped from a sideshow yesterday, slithering quietly out of its glass cage before Mme. Belle Bonita, the charmer knew it was gone.

Police were more alarmed by the disappearance of the snake than by most Coney Island "missing" cases.

Only Mme. Bonita was calm. "It just went out for a walk," she said this morning. "I am expecting it to return any minute."

ling, German vice consul and A. L. Mehan, a member of the mayor's committee, waited in the shadow of the Fort Wadsworth at the mouth of the harbor for the Dresden, which was an hour overdue.

The reception committee, carrying two enormous bouquets of red and tea roses, went aboard and in a few minutes appeared on deck with the wives of the fliers.

Both smiled and waved at the reporters on the Riverside, and then posed for pictures.

Mrs. Koehl speaks very little English and talked to reporters in German.

CREST OF FLOOD TO BE REACHED BY SATURDAY

BACKWATER BETWEEN BISCOE AND CLARENDON SPREADS 13 MILES

DEPTH OF WATER THERE SAID TO RANGE FROM 1 TO 15 FEET

Devals Bluffs, Ark., April 30.—(UP)—Seven hundred men, under direction of five government engineers, today were trying to raise Jackson's Bayou and Georgetown levees with sandbags faster than White river's slow rise.

With the stage today at 27.9, it is not believed the crest will go to 30 feet, as forecast Saturday.

Backwater already covers the territory between Biscoe and Clarendon, a distance of 13 miles, from one to 15 feet deep.

Several hundred Madison and Prairie county farmers have moved their families and livestock to higher ground. Their crops in most instances have been ruined.

Engineers believe the levees will hold and prevent further destruction.

By THOMAS L. STOKES (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 30.—Congress this week will prepare two measures—flood control and farm relief—for presentation to President Coolidge, who has criticized both.

Leaders at the capitol confidently expect his veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, upon which the house will resume general debate today, but there is some hope that the Mississippi flood control bill as it comes from the conference which began today will be sufficiently acceptable to receive the president's signature.

Final congressional action is expected this week on the Jones-Reid flood bill. The ten conferees of the house and senate will seek to adjust differences as early as possible. Their work must be confirmed by both bodies before the measure can be sent to the White House.

Final action on the farm relief bill is doubtful. Several hours of debate are left in the house. The measure should be passed by the middle or last part of the week, as it is the plan to have night sessions to speed up consideration. The bill then will have to go to conference to adjust differences between the Haugen measure and the McNary bill approved by the senate a few weeks ago.

Outside of the tax bill, these two are the most important and significant measures to come before congress this session. Their importance has been enhanced by the differences on both between congress and the president, for they have taken on a wider political significance because of the disagreement.

Presidential politics has been injected into debate on both measures, the charge has been made several times that the main purpose in pressing the McNary-Haugen bill again in the face of the president's open and continued disapproval is to make political capital for the Lowden and Dawes movements among farmers and at the same time to embarrass the candidacy of Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who opposes the McNary-Haugen bill.

Political observers also have speculated upon the effect a veto of the flood bill might have upon the Hoover candidacy, since Hoover won considerable favor last spring by his relief work in the flood-stricken areas.

Atlanta, Ga., April 30.—With 12 dead, 8,000 temporarily homeless and damage estimated at $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, the south's flood, wind and frost ravages appeared on the decline today.

Danger remained in the fertile Tom Bigbee river valley in Alabama, however, with thousands of acres of cotton lands inundated and the crest of the flood not expected to be reached for another 24 hours. Thousands were homeless.

Warm sunshine was widespread in other Georgia sections, and in Florida, where wind storms took a heavy toll last week. Frosts did some damage to crops in the Carolinas and in south Georgia.

The White river in Arkansas threatened to spread over the levee near Des Arc.

LADY BAILEY FINISHES SOLO FLIGHT AT CAPETOWN

HUNDREDS IN SILENT TRIBUTE TO CONGRESSMAN

FILE PAST COFFIN OF THE LATE REPRESENTATIVE MARTIN B. MADDEN

MADDEN'S 23 YEARS OF SERVICE IN HOUSE PRAISED IN EULOGIES

Washington, April 30.—(UP)—Hundreds filed past the coffin at the conclusion of the state funeral in the house chamber yesterday for Martin B. Madden of Illinois, who will be buried in Hinsdale, Ill., today.

President and Mrs. Coolidge, Vice-President Dawes, the cabinet, supreme court, diplomatic corps, senators and members of the house were present for the honor, which has been accorded few statesmen in the country's history.

Madden's 23 years of service in the house were praised by Vice-President Dawes and Rep. Joseph W. Byrnes, Tenn., ranking democrat on the house appropriations committee, of which Madden was chairman.

Many negroes sat in a special section of the gallery reserved for them. One of them, Paul Gaiety, fainted during the service and had to be carried out. He had been appointed a post office inspector through Madden's influence.

Madden's Chicago district is largely populated by negroes. A negro is expected to succeed to his seat.

SUDDEN MARRIAGE MAY SAVE LIFE OF YOUNG GIRL

New York, April 30.—(UP)—Sudden marriage may have saved the life of Miss Louise Gosey, 18-year-old physical culture instructor.

She was near death in a Long Island City sanatorium yesterday when Salem D. Maud, her fiancé, asked her physician if he thought getting married would do her any harm.

"It might be stimulating," said the doctor.

Physicians said today that Mrs. Salem D. Maud probably would recover from the illness that she had contracted as Miss Louise Gosey.

SEVERS JUGULAR VEIN, WINDPIPE, BY FLYING GLASS

Orange, N. J., April 30.—(UP)—Six hours after his jugular vein and windpipe had been severed by flying glass in an automobile accident, William Patten still was alive today, breathing through a tube.

Five specialists worked on Patten shortly after midnight when he was taken to Memorial hospital, although medical science concedes it is almost impossible to save a person's life after the jugular vein is cut.

4 BOYS DROWNED IN AN ICY RIVER

Erwin, Tenn., April 30.—(UP)—Four boys were drowned in the icy Nolichucky river, one mile south of here, last night.

They had been playing on the river bank and started out towards mid-stream in a boat they had found. The boat was capsized in the swift current.

ed for another 24 hours. Thousands were homeless.

Warm sunshine was widespread in other Georgia sections, and in Florida, where wind storms took a heavy toll last week. Frosts did some damage to crops in the Carolinas and in south Georgia.

The White river in Arkansas threatened to spread over the levee near Des Arc.

TWO BRITISH BATTLESHIPS ON TO EGYPT

SENT AS PRECAUTIONARY MEASURE IN VIEW OF TROUBLE THERE

BRITISH ULTIMATUM ON PUBLIC ASSEMBLIES EXPIRES ON WEDNESDAY

Malta, April 30.—(UP)—The British battleships Warspite and Villant and the cruisers Ceres and Calypso sailed at 9 A. M. today, and it was reported they were en route to Egypt as a precautionary measure in view of the crisis there.

It was stated officially the ships were en route to Corinth to relieve the aircraft carrier Eagle, doing earthquake relief work there, but the belief persisted that the ships would go to Alexandria.

Cairo, April 30.—The British ultimatum to the Egyptian government ordering the latter to withdraw the public assemblies bill expires Wednesday at 7 P. M. It was understood today.

The cabinet headed by Premier Nahas Pasha was reported to have held a hurried meeting today to discuss the ultimatum. The cabinet, according to most reliable information, decided to "pursue the policy specified when it accepted power."

This would indicate that in the face of the British admiralty order sending the two battleships and two cruisers to Alexandria from Malta, the cabinet had decided to stand unflinchingly by its measure.

The political situation created by the bill and the ultimatum is tense. Egyptian circles generally affirm that Premier Pasha is resolved to resist the British demands. He will refuse to resign, according to the most authoritative opinion.

Failure to withdraw the public assemblies bill, as demanded in the note, will be followed by seizure of the Egyptian customs.

The assemblies bill gives absolute freedom of public assembly to demonstrators and deprives the police of power they now hold to prevent "unlawful" assemblies, or even to disperse them otherwise with assemblies would be liable to punishment.

Great Britain's objection to the bill is based upon one of the points she reserved to herself in her proclamation of Egyptian independence in 1922—the one by which she would continue to protect foreign interests.

Most of the assemblies in Cairo are in protest against alleged British domination, and nearly all have an anti-British tinge. Britain argues that by permitting assemblies now and encourage rioting Egyptian government would paralyze the police and encourage rioting and general disorder. Foreigners, she holds, would be menaced.

Malta, April 30.—The British battleships Warspite and Villant and the cruisers Ceres and Calypso sailed today for Alexandria as "a precautionary measure."

London, April 30.—Sir Austin Chamberlain, foreign minister, announced in the house of commons today that Britain had demanded written assurance from Egypt that the assemblies bill, objectionable to England, will be withdrawn.

Egypt was given until 7 P. M. on Wednesday to answer the demand. Chamberlain said. If the demand is not met, England will feel free to take whatever action the government deems necessary.

BERGER INTRODUCES POWER RESOLUTION

Washington, April 30.—(UP)—Representative Victor Berger, socialist, Wisconsin, introduced a bill today providing for a national public super-power system to serve all citizens at cost.

He said this alone could overcome the "menace of corruption and thievery" by power interests.

If men of vision did not find in Boy Scouting so much that is valuable and noble, such wonderful opportunities would not be offered by them as, for example, the Harmon Foundation Scholarship. This is a recent thing. Under its provisions a fund has been established the proceeds of which yield each year $5,200. This is divided into 52 scholarships of $100 each, given annually to Eagle Scouts of the whole country. The United States is divided into 12 Scouting Regions. Minnesota is part of Region No. 10. Each region is allotted four scholarships, and there are four at large. In 1927 our region captured two of the four at large scholarships, making six for Region No. 10. Two went to Scouts of Minneapolis, two to Fargo, one to St. Paul and one to Valley City.

This scholarship is intended to be a contribution to aid the Scout in obtaining a collegiate education. When awarded, the money, if not needed immediately, is placed in a bank and draws interest until the money is withdrawn. If eventually the Scout does not go to a college, the award is withdrawn.

Each year the Scout Executives obtain recommendations of worthy Eagle Scouts in their troops. The local Court of Honor selects the ones with the best records. Points considered are:

First, that the Scout has actually put into practice in his daily life the ideals and principles of the Scout Oath and Law, the motto "Be Prepared" and the "Daily Good Turn."

Second, that he has maintained an active service relationship to Scouting of at least one year.

Third, that he has made an effort to develop and demonstrate leadership ability.

Fourth, that he has given conspicuous and unselfish service of some constructive nature, denoting character, perseverance or self-sacrifice.

The high character of these applicants was the outstanding thing of this contest in 1927. Almost all Scouts awarded the scholarship have entered or about to enter schools of higher education. Some are earning their own way. The list of awards shows service periods ranging from 3 to 10 years; most of them were 6 or more. The ages ranged from 16 to 21, mostly around 19. This is illustrative of the grip scouting has on those who enter its ranks. Some of the records of these winners is quite unbelievable; it shows the amazing possibilities of the Scout program.

More Than Arms and Legs

H. Gordon Selfridge, one of the world's foremost merchants, says in his book, "The Romance of Commerce."

"There is so much more to the employee than two arms and two legs. There is the spirit of enthusiasm and earnestness and 'I will' which means more to the employer than ten pairs of arms and legs. And loyalty is a quality to be earned by the employer from the employee and only earned by fair, friendly generous treatment."

These are the views of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana)—views which it has expressed concretely. By all the means known to enlightened modern business, this Company has endeavored to earn and hold the loyalty of its employees.

The Industrial Relations Plan, the Death Benefits, the Annuity Plan and the Employees' Stock Purchasing Plans are concrete expressions of its desire to give employees "fair, friendly, generous treatment."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is a human organization—made up of 27,010 human beings. These men and women are not considered merely as working units—so many arms and legs—so much mind and muscle. Each is an individual who makes his contribution to the enormous capital of human effort necessary to carry on the work of the Company.

All men are equal in the opportunities they enjoy in this Company. There is no place in the organization out of reach of the man with the ambition and the ability to fill it.

This democratic policy has developed a smooth-running, efficient organization in which every man's ability is utilized to best advantage, in which every job is done by the man best qualified to do it.

In addition, this policy promotes a feeling of friendly cooperation among employees. Men in responsible positions have consideration born of actual experience for those lower in the ranks.

Men in the lower ranks have respect for those higher up because they know that these men have earned the right to their responsibilities.

As a result, a friendly helpful spirit prevails among employees. They are bound together by mutual appreciation and by a profound loyalty to their Company.

The spirit within the organization is reflected without and it is this spirit that is fundamental to the success of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The Red Crown discs peppering the Middle West have won their friendly welcome among motorists, not by their shape or color, but because of the spirit behind them, the spirit of thousands of men and women who work with enthusiasm, satisfied only when they have done their best.

All men are equal in the opportunities they enjoy in this Company. There is no place in the organization out of reach of the man with the ambition and the ability to fill it.

This democratic policy has developed a smooth-running, efficient organization in which every man's ability is utilized to best advantage, in which every job is done by the man best qualified to do it.

In addition, this policy promotes a feeling of friendly cooperation among employees. Men in responsible positions have consideration born of actual experience for those lower in the ranks.

Men in the lower ranks have respect for those higher up because they know that these men have earned the right to their responsibilities.

As a result, a friendly helpful spirit prevails among employees. They are bound together by mutual appreciation and by a profound loyalty to their Company.

The spirit within the organization is reflected without and it is this spirit that is fundamental to the success of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The Red Crown discs peppering the Middle West have won their friendly welcome among motorists, not by their shape or color, but because of the spirit behind them, the spirit of thousands of men and women who work with enthusiasm, satisfied only when they have done their best.

WE NEED AN AIRPORT

We have had a lot of talk about the need of an airport and several investigating committees, but nothing definite has resulted, at least not enough of a field to be publicly adapted as a landing place where an aviator may rely with certainty that the ground is proper and he is welcome to dip down for a rest.

Last year when the Fargo aviator was blown off his course and did not spot Brainerd, the wind carrying him out on Mille Lacs lake, from which section he at length made the Cross Lake country jackpines and smashed his plane, it caused a spasm of public interest and everybody said something should be done to get a landing place with proper markers to avoid such accidents in the future.

At a recent Chamber of Commerce meeting the Finkelstein & Ruben representative made the assertion that our lake country will soon draw people who will make the trip by airplane.

And a few days ago announcement was made in Twin City papers that the Kavli Realty Company of Minneapolis is to take customers by airplane to its Manhattan Beach and other lake property holdings in the Brainerd Lake Region. Saturday morning the younger Kavli visited the Dispatch office and inquired about a landing field. The only marker the aviator had to guide him to Brainerd was the water tower and after he sighted that he swooped around in broad circles looking for a place to land. Many of the fields formerly used for a landing have been plowed up and planted.

At length young Roger Sergeant of St. Paul, bucking the strong shifting wind in his Waco plane carrying three people, spotted a small fenced field east of the railway track and near the Sixth street mine. He hugged the top of the woods on the Rosko land, cleared several barbed wire fences and then hit rough, stony ground, dipped the plane's nose in the ground and splintered his propeller so that kindling wood was found all over the lot. He broke a wheel and damaged a wing.

The Kavlis had hired a photographer to take air views of their subdivisions in our lake country. He returned to St. Paul on the next bus without his pictures. Luckily no one was injured in the mishap.

But it does not speak well for Brainerd. We may not be rich enough to equip a regular airport with all its conveniences for air travel, but we must get busy, and soon too, to provide a well marked landing field.

The Twin City papers on Sunday run a column devoted to airplane news. Montevideo is planning an air derby May 19 and 20 sponsored by the American Legion. A flying derby is to be held at Crookston May 26 and 27. Owatonna is planning an airport and seeks to be established on the proposed Twin Cities-Des Moines air line route. At Worthington plans for the establishment of an airport are being considered by the American Legion, Kiwanis club and other organizations. An aviation school and aerial taxi service is to be launched at Minot, N. D. On all sides one sees real evidence of interest in aviation.

Brainerd should take the first step quickly. Rent, if we cannot buy, a tract where an aviator may land with safety and mark it so he can spot it. Then, if we raise some more money, we can make an airport. But by all means let's establish a decent public landing place.

EXTENSION SERVICE AIDS COUNTRY HOMES

In an interesting letter to the Brainerd Dispatch, Mrs. Edward A. Nelson of Route No. 2, Box 64, Brainerd, writes that just as tourists are helping to build better cities and lake resorts, so is the Extension Service helping to build better country homes.

The aim of the Extension Service is better, more satisfied country homes. With this splendid goal in view it is hoped every farm home may be reached in the near future.

This will not be a gain for the farm homes alone, but the cities as well. Business men and women have given fine cooperation to farm women's clubs. That, along with the improved farm conditions, will help to break down the barriers between city and farm homes.

There are twenty clubs organized for the millinery project. These groups will determine whether the next project shall be nutrition, home management or poultry.

The quality and quantity of service derived from Extension Service is determined by the farm women themselves. All these subjects are of vital importance to farm women. There should be at least 40 clubs organized for the next project, every club member giving her whole hearted support to make her community a little better to live in.

TESTS FOR UNIVERSITY

EXAMINATIONS will be conducted in 15 Minnesota communities in the next four days for high school students planning on entering the University of Minnesota.

In conducting these tests the university is continuing its new system of "carrying the examination to the students." Five teams of two instructors each give the examinations. The instructors left Minneapolis Sunday for the various towns where the examinations will be given.

Twin City students will take their tests in the engineering building auditorium on the campus Monday at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Tests also will be given Monday at Brainerd, Duluth, Mankato, Marshall and Willmar; Tuesday at Albert Lea, Alexandria, Bemidji and Pipestone; Wednesday at Crookston, Northfield, St. Cloud and Windom; and Thursday at Moorhead and Winona.

Seniors in all Minnesota high schools who plan to enter the university next fall have been urged to take the examinations. The examinations to be given are in English, reading ability and regular psychological tests.

PADDOCK'S FLYING LEGS

WHEN Paddock made his first record breaking marks in the West, the Eastern wisecracks said he was running down hill or the wind was boosting him along.

And on Saturday Paddock ran at Philadelphia and just after the starter's gun barked, and Paddock snapped out, a section of seats, brick wall and all collapsed and shot 50 spectators on the track. The fastest human ducked crowd and bricks and incidentally broke a world's record for 175 yards.

Now maybe some wise judge will say that Paddock's legs got an extra stimulus when he dodged the falling stands, and will want him to run again.

COUNTRY print shops, says an exchange, are certainly being well supplied with cuts of men in public life.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

An all-night card game is drawing to a close in the old Sweet Springs Inn. The players are beginning to take stock of their winnings, when Preston tosses into the game a small miniature of Betsy Patterson. He offers to stake it against a hundred pounds, boasting that Betsy gave it him herself. A stranger, passing the open window, overhears the remark, and challenges the speaker. A fight ensues in which Preston is wounded and his adversary goes off with the miniature, leaving a purse of gold behind on the table.

CHAPTER I—Continued

"Ay, a French tutor who tosses gold about as though it were words," another added, impressed. "Gentlemen," he turned to his companions with a puzzled look on his face, "we have a mystery here."

"A mystery indeed," another agreed. "Who the devil is this fellow?"

"Here, Sam! Sam!" Preston looked about him, still rubbing his twisted wrist. "Where the devil's that blackape? Sam!"

"Here, suh! Yas, suh!" Sam came forward from his hiding place behind the door of the bar, grinning broadly.

"Bring me a whiskey, quick!"

CHAPTER II

Leaving the scene of his activities behind him, the man in black walked hastily down the slope and towards the woods as though he were bent on some urgent errand. At last he entered the heavily shaded part of the path. Overhead

"And, may I ask where you were,—earlier?"

the branches of the trees interlocked, and through their lacy foliage came only faint glints of dancing sunbeams. The soft wood moss grew lush and green on rocks and boulders, and even attempted to spring up underfoot and provide a velvet carpet. Squirrels ran nimbly by, taking to trees at the approach of a human being, and sat above on low branches, chattering and flicking their bushy tails about in a thoroughly injured manner. But the man in black did not pause.

After some fifteen minutes had elapsed, he approached a tree—certainly a tree that appeared exactly like its comrades, but to the man it seemed to carry some special significance, for he stopped and looked about him. He paced back and forth for a few moments, and then consulted a heavily enameled watch. Then he went around the tree and thrust his fingers into a knothole. They emerged with a tricorn of paper, unevenly folded. He opened the note, slowly.

"A lady," he read, "may be kept waiting only by her husband or her lover, and I have neither. Your manners are sadly in need of improvement." He smiled. Then he began to laugh. And then he finally thrust the missive back into his pocket.

He glanced around as though debating his course of action. Before him lay the continuation of the path; behind him, the hotel. But even as he hesitated he noticed a slight noise in the underbrush, and in another moment a big retriever dog came leaping through the bushes, trailing a limp object from his mouth.

"Here, Spot! Spot!" he called. The dog came bounding over at the tutor's call, jumping up and down, and licking the man's hands affectionately, and dropping his light burden. The man stooped and picked it up. A woman's stocking.

"Spot! Go find your mistress," the man commanded, giving the animal a final pat.

The dog turned in the direction that led into the woods, and with a backward glance at the man, started on his way. The tutor thrust the stocking into his pocket and followed on the trail of his guide. A short walk, and man and dog came to a sort of clearing, where the trees were less dense, and a heavier underbrush clustered. The ripple of a spring could be faintly heard, and a great deal of splashing almost drowning out the ripple. With much acumen the dog dashed on ahead and barked loudly.

"Spot! Spot!" The clear voice of a woman sounded through the underbrush as the dog darted off, worming his way beneath the thick growth on his belly. A tremendous sound of splashing. Then another call.

"Spot! Drop that! Drop it this instant, sir."

But the dog stood pawing the ground, barking, leaping up and down and generally worrying a shoe. There, splashing water about like some woodland goddess, stood a girl of eighteen. Her knee-length pantaloons were tucked up about her slender legs, and her dress, shoes, hat and a remaining stocking lay in a soft heap on the bank. Her rounded, white shoulders gleamed like alabaster in the sun that sifted through the leafy shade, and touched to molten copper the glorious red of her soft hair that was drawn high off her neck and topped with a little mass of curls. The golden red masses were arranged closely about the ears, with escaping curls caressing the soft pink of the cheeks and the white forehead. Now she gesticulated at the dog, but still with no effect, for he had already dropped the shoe, seized a stocking, and was back into the underbrush.

The animal came out on the other side of the shrubbery, disdaining the path that led around it. He pursued his course, but only for a few short bounds. There he met the man in black, and with a leap he was jumping up and down, fawning on him, depositing his trophy at the tutor's feet. The man stopped to pat the dog and to pick up the stocking on the path. But as he bent over, there was a collision. A strange apparition appeared on the path, running, and almost fell over the form of the man in black. A flash of red hair; a display of long, pink-flushed limbs. The man straightened up. A terrified scream, and the apparition disappeared behind the kindly shelter of the bushes. The man smiled—and waited.

"Are you—are you still there?" the voice came from behind the brush, a little tremulously and somewhat muffled, as though the speaker were struggling with something that rather obstinately was refusing to go over the head.

"Yes, Ma'mselle, I am," the man in black returned. "I am waiting."

"Which is more than you were earlier this morning," came the caustic reply. And then the speaker emerged from behind the bushes, shoes and Lavinia hat in hand, walking gingerly and stepping carefully.

"Mademoiselle Patterson," the tutor bowed low.

"And, may I ask where you were—earlier, Monsieur La Vert?" Betsy Patterson questioned, her blue eyes, fringed with long, dark lashes, flashing fire and turning almost to a green that matched the sheer, daintily flowered muslin dress with the high waisted bodice and the lace frill about the neck that set off the piquant, vivacious face. The long, clinging skirt with its shorter over dress, revealed the beauty of the lithe, graceful form, as Mistress Patterson came forward and faced her tutor accusingly.

The man remained silent under her direct gaze, shaking his head as though he were debating as to the best excuse to make. Certainly, he couldn't speak of the actions of the morning to a lady. It was a gentleman's affair, and, as such, demanded secrecy—at least from himself.

"Ah, Ma'mselle, I am sorry, but I—I was detained—unavoidably detained," Monsieur finally bowed.

"But may I ask—why are you here?"

"To be continued."

Scintillating Remarks by Noisy Detroit Fans

In relating the baseball expressions for which Hughie Jennings was famous, one has been generally overlooked, and that was:

"Touch all the bases."

At times he emphasized it: "Remember now: Touch all the bases."

It was always shouted across the playing field when a Detroit baysman came to the plate in a pinch.

If the batter happened to strike out, or fly out, or ground out, the crowd, if Detroit happened to be playing on a foreign field, had its revenge. The crowd, in chorus, would yell to Jennings:

"See him touch all the bases, Hughie!"

Or, quite often: "Hey, Hughie, that bum can't even touch first."

And similar scintillating remarks. But Jennings generally had his innings before the game was over. Sooner or later Rossman, Cobb or Crawford, would "get hold of one" and touch several bases while Jennings shrieked and danced in glee, fully revenged.

"Live and Be Merry"

"Carpe diem" means, literally "seize the day." A broader translation of this epicurean maxim is, "enjoy the present time."

A word from the publisher . . . about advertising

The products you see consistently advertised in this paper are worthy of your confidence.

It takes two things to make a consistent advertiser. One is a strong conviction that he has a product that will hold its place in public favor despite competition. The other is actual proof of that . . . the increasing popularity of his product.

If his product will not stand the test of comparison he would simply be throwing his advertising investment away. If the buying public rejects his product after it has been offered in advertising he has thrown his advertising investment away.

That's why the manufacturer who advertises his merchandise consistently is very sure of his quality . . . and why you may be sure of it, too.

Read the advertising here in your newspaper . . . it will guide you to the buying of worthy merchandise

Squirrels ran nimbly by, taking to trees at the approach of a human being, and sat above on low branches, chattering and flicking their bushy tails about in a thoroughly injured manner. But the man in black did not pause.

After some fifteen minutes had elapsed, he approached a tree—certainly a tree that appeared exactly like its comrades, but to the man it seemed to carry some special significance, for he stopped and looked about him. He paced back and forth for a few moments, and then consulted a heavily enameled watch. Then he went around the tree and thrust his fingers into a knothole. They emerged with a tricorne of paper, unevenly folded. He opened the note, slowly.

"A lady," he read, "may be kept waiting only by her husband or her lover, and I have neither. Your manners are sadly in need of improvement." He smiled. Then he began to laugh. And then he finally thrust the missive back into his pocket.

He glanced around as though debating his course of action. Before him lay the continuation of the path; behind him, the hotel. But even as he hesitated he noticed a slight noise in the underbrush, and in another moment a big retriever dog came leaping through the bushes, trailing a limp object from his mouth.

"Here, Spot! Spot!" he called. The dog came bounding over at the tutor's call, jumping up and down, and licking the man's hands affectionately, and dropping his light burden. The man stooped and picked it up. A woman's stocking.

"Spot! Go find your mistress," the man commanded, giving the animal a final pat.

The dog turned in the direction that led into the woods, and with a backward glance at the man, started on his way. The tutor thrust the stocking into his pocket and followed on the trail of his guide. A short walk, and man and dog came to a sort of clearing, where the trees were less dense, down, fawning on him, depositing his trophy at the tutor's feet. The man stopped to pat the dog and to pick up the stocking on the path. But as he bent over, there was a collision. A strange apparition appeared on the path, running, and almost fell over the form of the man in black. A flash of red hair; a display of long, pink-finished limbs. The man straightened up. A terrified scream, and the apparition disappeared behind the kindly shelter of the bushes. The man smiled—and waited.

"Are you—are you still there?" the voice came from behind the brush, a little tremulously and somewhat muffled, as though the speaker were struggling with something that rather obstinately was refusing to go over the head.

"Yes, Ma'mselle, I am," the man in black returned. "I am waiting."

"Which is more than you were earlier this morning," came the caustic reply. And then the speaker emerged from behind the bushes, shoes and Lavinia hat in hand, walking gingerly and stepping carefully.

"Mademoiselle Patterson," the tutor bowed low.

"And, may I ask where you were—earlier, Monsieur La Vert?" Betsy Patterson questioned, her blue eyes, fringed with long, dark lashes, flashing fire and turning almost to a green that matched the sheer, daintily flowered muslin dress with the high waisted bodice and the lace frill about the neck that set off the pliant, vivacious face. The long, clinging skirt with its shorter over dress, revealed the beauty of the lithe, graceful form, as Mistress Patterson came forward and faced her tutor accusingly.

The man remained silent under her direct gaze, shaking his head as though he were debating as to the best excuse to make. Certainly, he couldn't speak of the actions of the morning to a lady. It was a gentleman's affair, and, as such, demanded secrecy—at least from himself.

"Ah, Ma'mselle, I am sorry, but I—I was detained—unavoidably detained," Monsieur finally bowed. "But may I ask—why are you here?"

To be continued.

Scintillating Remarks by Noisy Detroit Fans

In relating the baseball expressions for which Hughie Jennings was famous, one has been generally overlooked, and that was:

"Touch all the bases."

It was always shouted across the playing field when a Detroit batsman came to the plate in a pinch.

If the batter happened to strike out, or fly out, or ground out, the crowd, if Detroit happened to be playing on a foreign field, had its revenge. The crowd, in chorus, would yell to Jennings:

"See him touch all the bases, Hughie!"

Or, quite often:

"Hey, Hughie, that bum can't even touch first."

And similar scintillating remarks.

But Jennings generally had his innings before the game was over. Sooner or later Rossman, Cobb or Crawford, would "get hold of one" and touch several bases while Jennings shrieked and danced in glee, fully re-vengeed.

"Live and Be Merry"

"Carpe diem" means, literally "seize the day." A broader translation of this epicurean maxim is, "enjoy the present time."

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. A word from the publisher . . . about advertising

The products you see consistently advertised in this paper are worthy of your confidence.

It takes two things to make a consistent advertiser. One is a strong conviction that he has a product that will hold its place in public favor despite competition. The other is actual proof of that . . . the increasing popularity of his product.

If his product will not stand the test of comparison he would simply be throwing his advertising investment away. If the buying public rejects his product after it has been offered in advertising he has thrown his advertising investment away.

That's why the manufacturer who advertises his merchandise consistently is very sure of his quality . . . and why you may be sure of it, too.

DeLANEY, SHARKEY MEET AT MADISON GARDEN TONIGHT

PADDOCK IS LIKELY TO MAKE U. S. OLYMPIC TEAM

15 ROUND BOUT IS ON THE PROGRAM

THIS TIME IT'S A BATTLE OF
FIGHT OR QUIT FOR BOTH
OF THEM

FINE OPPORTUNITY FOR ONE OF
THEM TO WIN BACK
POPULARITY

New York, April 30. — (UP) — Jack Delaney and Jack Sharkey again have a chance to redeem themselves before the fight public tonight when they meet in a 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

Once two of the most colorful and worthy heavyweights of the day, Sharkey and Delaney have deteriorated into second-raters through their refusal to fight in their last few important appearances.

This time, it's fight or quit for both of them. Sharkey and Delaney have made pretenses of serious training and are boasting about what they are going to do to each other but a few of the fight fans who have been paying $27.50 ringside to see them use their opponents for waltzing partners are skeptical.

There is a fine opportunity for one of them to win back a lot of popularity and perhaps the inside track to an important fight quite likely to take place in September.

New York, April 30. — (UP) — Jack Sharkey will have a 14-pound weight advantage over Jack Delaney when they meet tonight.

The two weighed in at the offices of the boxing commission this afternoon, Sharkey tipping the scales at 192 and Delaney at 178. Sharkey's weight was a surprise as he had promised he would be down in the eighties.

Watching the Scoreboard

By United Press
Yesterday's Hero—Herb Pennock of the New York Yankees. He pitched the world champions to a 7 to 5 victory over the Washington Senators, enabling the Yankees to slip back into first place in the American league as the Cleveland Indians lost to the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 6, in 10 innings. It was Pennock's fourth victory of the season. Babe Ruth helped Pennock win by clouting home run No. 4 with two men on, off Horace Lisenbee. Three of the four homers hit by Ruth this season have been off Lisenbee.

Ralph Kress made three errors at shortstop but the St. Louis Browns beat the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 2, and went into a tie with the Athletics for third place.

The Brooklyn Robins made themselves at home in first place in the National league by taking a double-header from the Phillies, 3 to 1 and 3 to 0. Buzz McWeeney and Bill Clark did the pitching for the Robins and the Phils made only one run and eight hits in both games.

The Giants battled the Braves for four hours but lost ground in the pennant race by splitting a double-header. Brown hit a home run with two men on in the first game and the Braves won, 5 to 2. Brown also drove in four runs in the second game but the Giants made 15 hits and won, 12 to 8.

Mike Gonzales' single in the twelfth scored Heathcote with the run which gave the Cubs a 6 to 5 win over St. Louis.

Purdy hit safely in his fifteenth straight game driving home the deciding run in the Reds' 3 to 2 win over the Pirates.

The Athletics and Red Sox were idle.

WHAT OUTSTANDING STARS DID YESTERDAY

Kiki Cuyler, up five times, scored a run and made a single.

Paul Waner made two singles and scored a run in four times up.

Rogers Hornsby made three hits, scored three runs and drove in three runs in seven times at bat in two games.

Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker were idle.

Von Porat to Meet Roebuck

American League Flag Race Will Be Hard One

Miller Huggins says the American league pennant race of 1928 will not be a repetition of the pennant race of 1927. "There will be no walkaway for New York this season," he prophesied.

Huggins believes that Washington and Philadelphia will make a race of it, instead of a New York parade. He explains:

"Washington is stronger than it was last season and so is Philadelphia.

"George Sisler will help Washington. Gaston will make a strong pitching staff all the stronger.

"Tris Speaker will make the Philadelphia outfield. Connie Mack has fine pitching. Grove and Walberg, two of his left-handers, are going to make a whole lot of trouble this season.

"Connie Mack bought Robert Moses Grove from Baltimore for $100,000. The terms of the sale gave him 10 years in which to pay the money. He hands over $10,000 every year and he saves that by refusing to take on $10,000 worth of untitled material offered him by minor league clubs.

"When Mack agreed to pay $100,000 for Grove, I thought he made a terrible bargain," said Huggins, "but not any more. I'd like to make a 'terrible' bargain like that right now."

Fitzsimmons Stars

Great things are expected of Fred Fitzsimmons, husky Giant pitcher, this year. When secured from Indianapolis in 1925 he went right out and made good from the start. He was better last year, and this season he is counted to create a new sensation.

George Sisler Sees Big Year for Griff's Team

George Sisler, star first baseman and former kingpin slugger of the American league, was en route recently to the Tangle (Fla.) spring training camp of the Washingtons. Sisler left for the East after spending the winter at Laguna beach.

The first sucker, who previous to being sold to Washington, played with the St. Louis Browns, said that he hopes to have the best season he has had since his brilliant career was halted temporarily by sinus trouble.

"I am in the best condition I have been in for some years, and I'm due to have a big year with the Washingtons," Sisler said.

RUNNING DAYS OF ATHLETE ARE FAR FROM OVER

SPECTACULAR PERFORMANCE ON SATURDAY ESTABLISHING WORLD'S RECORD

WILL FORSAKE WIDELY ADVERTISED
RACE WITH BORAH
NEXT MONTH

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, April 30. — Charley Paddock's running days are far from over and the blonde Californian is quite likely to bob up as one of the eight sprinters on the 1928 American Olympic team.

Following his spectacular performance in establishing a new world's record for the 175 yards in the thirty-fourth annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival Saturday, Paddock is confident that he can make his third Olympic team.

To concentrate on an effort for winning this Olympic berth, Paddock has announced his intention of forsaking his widely advertised meeting with Charley Borah, the University of Southern California star.

The race between Paddock and Borah was scheduled for next month on the Pacific coast, but Paddock plans to remain in the east to condition himself for the final Olympic tryouts at Boston in July.

Through mud and slush ankle deep Paddock raced 175 yards in 17 2/5 seconds at the Penn carnival, surpassing his former world's mark of 17 4/5 seconds made in Salt Lake City last year.

Meanwhile, Borah was doing the 100-yard dash in 9 3/5 seconds in the west coast relays at Fresno, Cal.

Pitted against Paddock were Fowell Scull, University of Pennsylvania football star and one of the best collegiate sprinters in the east, and two other Penn runners. They were all left far behind.

Two sections of the 10 foot wall between the track and stands collapsed in front of the runners and onto the track just as they came tearing out of the chute. Paddock, running in the lane next to the wall, was the only one menaced by the crumbling bricks and struggling humans, and he had to swerve and shift his stride to keep from colliding with a man.

Paddock at 27 is one of the running marvels of the age. He has been competing for 14 years, having won his first medal at 13. Twice a member of the Olympic team, he cannot be counted out of the competition for the Amsterdam squad until some of the younger group conquer his flying feet.

American Tobacco Co. Profits Again Increased

For the year 1927, the annual report of The American Tobacco Company, just issued, shows a net profit of $23,309,689.16, or an increase of $760,594.93. 1926 was, up to that time, the banner year in profits.

It has been generally known that many of their brands, particularly the brand "Lucky Strike Cigarettes," have shown a large increase in sales during the year 1927, and it has been known also that very large increased amounts have been spent by The American Tobacco company in advertising.

The total earnings on the common stock ($50.00 par value) were, in 1927, $10.29 per share as against $9.90 in 1926; thus carrying, after the payment of $8.90 per share of dividends, $4,472,964.87 as an addition to surplus. The surplus at the end of 1926 was $34,948,276.40, and this addition brings it up to $39,421,241.27 at the end of 1927.

While it is not part of the treasurer's report, it is understood that the number of stockholders during the year 1927 shows a very substantial increase, there now being more than 31,000 stockholders of record in the company.

Ex-Coaster Has Great Year With Buffalo Team

Leo A. Mangum, who won 19 games and lost 20 games for the Portland club of the Pacific Coast league in 1926, had a great season in 1927, twirling for the pennant-winning Buffalo club in the International league. Mangum turned in 21 winning games with only seven defeats for a percentage mark of .750. He led all pitchers in the percentages and was one of four to win 20 games. Mangum pitched in 35 contests and worked through 21 complete games. He twirled five shutout victories. He was credited with fanning 127 batters to place fourth in this department.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The first heavyweight fight of importance since Jack Sharkey was eliminated as a possible contender for the championship takes place at Madison Square Garden tonight when the Bostonian returns to the ring to tackle Jack Delaney of Bridgeport.

Nothing depends upon the outcome of the fight, for both Sharkey and Delaney have been stricken from the list of possible opponents for Gene Tunney. Yet there is every indication that the fans will turn out in numbers to watch the two discredited Jacks go through their gestures tonight.

Both Jacks possess more "color" than the men who defeated them and put them out of the elimination tournament last winter. Sharkey exudes it at every pore, while it has been Delaney's forte through a fairly lengthy ring career.

"In-and-outers," both of them, Sharkey and Delaney simply could not seem to make good when their big opportunities came.

Delaney, as a light heavyweight, rose to the top after some exciting battles with Paul Berlenbach. Jack stopped Mike McTigue for the first time in the ancient Celt's career. John Risko of Cleveland was one of the French-Canadian victims; Jack Renault, Bud Gorman, Bob Fitzsimmons were others.

Yet when Rickard asked Delaney to beat Jimmy Maloney, the Boston fish monger, as a prelude to a possible match with Gene Tunney and certainly to a shot at Jack Dempsey and the real money of the prize ring, the Bridgeport Adonis dogged it and lost the decision. A few weeks later, Sharkey knocked Maloney kicking, and it since has been demonstrated that Jimmy was just a set-up for any good heavyweight in the business.

Again, when Delaney had his chance against Heeney, Jack put up a miserable showing and let the plodding New Zealander take the play quite away from him.

Sharkey, who held Heeney to a draw, then went out and blew his chance by losing to Risko, who had been beaten by both Delaney and Heeney.

It was a queer hodge-podge, the heavyweight line-up of 1927-28, but two of the queerest, most consistently unsatisfactory performers were Sharkey and Delaney. Tonight they meet in what is indeed an elimination contest. The winner is not going anywhere, but the loser will be eliminated beyond trace. Or should be.

Gene Tunney probably is smiling to himself as he contemplates the spectacle of tonight's engagement. Either Sharkey or Delaney, at his best, might have given the heavyweight champion a deal of trouble. Tom Heeney, the hirsute New Zealander, is not likely to do so.

A fine burst of speed, boxing and hitting such as Sharkey showed against Dempsey in the first round at Yankee Stadium last summer might prove sufficient to upset a Tunney who is not attuned to serious fistcuffs after a year of idleness.

A terrific right-hand wallop such as Delaney has given evidence at times of possessing might, properly applied, floor the champion for a count so long that even a Chicago referee would reach "ten" in time for the title to change hands.

Sharkey had one thing, Delaney another, but either might have proven destructive in a bout with Tunney. But both principals in tonight's affair threw away their chances, and now they are brought together with nothing at stake.

It is just a case of seeing which can be worse, under the circumstances.

CONSIDERS MITCHELL AND COMPSTON BEST BETS IN ENGLISH GOLF

BRITISH OPEN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP
PLAY STARTS AT SANDWICH NEXT MONDAY

By GENE SARAZEN
(Copyright 1928 by United Press)

Sandwich, Eng., April 30. — (U.P.) — I consider Abe Mitchell, the veteran British professional, and Archie Compston, who conquered Walter Hagen at Moor Park, the two best bets in the British open golf championship, which starts here next Monday.

It may be that some one of the Americans who are at Sandwich will win the title, but the chances are less than during the past two years when we had Bobby Jones to show the way.

Tommy Armour, our national champion, is playing wonderful golf and hitting them a mile. He will need to, for the course here is extremely long.

Bill Mehlhorn also has been going strong, and Hagen will show us today what he can do with the championship fairways and greens. Jim Barnes has not been playing well in practice, but he is getting better each day, and there always is a chance that he may repeat his 1925 triumph.

The weather here has been poor for golf—rainy and windy. There are two courses for the qualifying rounds—the Royal St. Georges and the Prince's. I am paired with Bill Mehlhorn for the first round on Monday over the former course. The next day we play Prince's.

There is a young Argentine golfer here who should do well. His name is Jurado. While he is light and small he gets remarkable power into his shots.

DeLANEY, SHARKEY MEET AT MADISON GARDEN TONIGHT

15 ROUND
BOUT IS ON

THE PROGRAM

THIS TIME IT'S A BATTLE OF
FIGHT OR QUIT FOR BOTH
OF THEM

FINE OPPORTUNITY FOR ONE OF
THEM TO WIN BACK
POPULARITY

New York, April 30. — (UP) — Jack Delaney and Jack Sharkey again have a chance to redeem themselves before the fight public tonight when they meet in a 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

Once two of the most colorful and worthy heavyweights of the day, Sharkey and Delaney have deteriorated to second-raters through their refusal to fight in their last few important appearances.

This time, it's fight or quit for both of them.

Sharkey and Delaney have made pretenses of serious training and are boasting about what they are going to do to each other but a few of the fight fans who have been paying $27.50 ringside to see them use their opponents for waiting partners are skeptical.

There is a fine opportunity for one of them to win back a lot of popularity and perhaps the inside track to an important fight quite likely to take place in September.

New York, April 30. — (UP) — Jack Sharkey will have a 14-pound weight advantage over Jack Delaney when they meet tonight.

The two weighed in at the offices of the boxing commission this afternoon, Sharkey tipping the scales at 192 and Delaney at 178. Sharkey's weight was a surprise as he had promised he would be down in the eighties.

Watching the Scoreboard

Yesterday's Hero—Herb Pennock of the New York Yankees. He pitched the world champions to a 7 to 5 victory over the Washington Senators, enabling the Yankees to slip back into first place in the American league as the Cleveland Indians lost to the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 6, in 10 innings. It was Pennock's fourth victory of the season. Babe Ruth helped Pennock win by clouting home run No. 4 with two men on, off Horace Lisenbee. Three of the four homers hit by Ruth this season have been off Lisenbee.

Ralph Kress made three errors at shortstop but the St. Louis Browns beat the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 2, and went into a tie with the Athletics for third place.

The Brooklyn Robins made themselves at home in first place in the National league by taking a double-header from the Phillies, 3 to 1 and 3 to 0. Buzz McWeeny and Bill Clark did the pitching for the Robins and the Phils made only one run and eight hits in both games.

The Giants battled the Braves for four hours but lost ground in the pennant race by splitting a double-header. Brown hit a home run with two men on in the first game and the Braves won, 5 to 2. Brown also drove in four runs in the second game but the Giants made 15 hits and won, 12 to 8.

Mike Gonzales' single in the twelfth scored Heathcote with the run which gave the Cubs a 6 to 5 win over St. Louis.

Purdy hit safely in his thirteenth straight game driving home the deciding run in the Reds' 3 to 2 win over the Pirates.

The Athletics and Red Sox were idle.

WHAT OUTSTANDING STARS DID YESTERDAY

(By United Press)
Babe Ruth hit home run No. 4 and singled once in four times up, drove in three runs and scored two himself.

Lou Gehrig made two singles in four times up, scored a run and drove in another but made an error.

Harry Heilmann singled once and scored a run in five times up.

Kiki Cuyler, up five times, scored a run and made a single.

Paul Waner made two singles and scored a run in four times up.

Rogers Hornsby made three hits, scored three runs and drove in three runs in seven times at bat in two games.

Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker were idle.

Von Porat to Meet Roebuck

Chicago—Otto Von Porat of Norway and Tiny Roebuck, former Haskell Indian football player, will meet in a 10-round bout here tonight. They are heavyweights. Both are hopeful of making tonight's bout a step in the direction of a heavy-weight championship.

Race Will Be Hard One
Miller Huggins says the American league pennant race of 1928 will not be a repetition of the pennant race of 1927. "There will be no walkaway for New York this season," he prophesied.

Huggins believes that Washington and Philadelphia will make a race of it, instead of a New York parade. He explains:

"Washington is stronger than it was last season and so is Philadelphia. "George Sisler will help Washington. Gaston will make a strong pitching staff all the stronger.

"Tris Speaker will make the Philadelphia outfield. Connie Mack has fine pitching. Grove and Walberg, two of his left-handers, are going to make a whole lot of trouble this season.

"Connie Mack bought Robert Moses Grove from Baltimore for $100,000. The terms of the sale gave him 10 years in which to pay the money. He hands over $10,000 every year and he saves that by refusing to take on $10,000 worth of untitled material offered him by minor league clubs.

"When Mack agreed to pay $100,000 for Grove, I thought he made a terrible bargain," said Huggins. "But not any more. I'd like to make a terrible bargain like that right now."

Fitzsimmons Stars

Great things are expected of Fred Fitzsimmons, husky Giant pitcher, this year. When secured from Indianapolis in 1925 he went right out and made good from the start. He was better last year, and this season he is counted to create a new sensation.

George Sisler Sees Big Year for Griff's Team

George Sisler, star first baseman and former kingly slugger of the American league, was en route recently to the Tampa (Fla.) spring training camp of the Washingtons. Sisler left for the East after spending the winter at Laguna beach.

The first sacker, who previous to being sold to Washington, played with the St. Louis Browns, said that he hopes to have the best season he has had since his brilliant career was halted temporarily by sinus trouble.

"I am in the best condition I have been in for some years, and I'm due to have a big year with the Washingtons," Sisler said.

RUNNING DAYS OF ATHLETE ARE FAR FROM OVER

SPECTACULAR PERFORMANCE ON SATURDAY ESTABLISHING WORLD'S RECORD

WILL FORSAKE WIDELY ADVERTISED RACE WITH BORAH NEXT MONTH

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, April 30. — Charley Paddock's running days are far from over and the blonde Californian is quite likely to bob up as one of the eight sprinters on the 1928 American Olympic team.

Following his spectacular performance in establishing a new world's record for the 175 yards in the thirty-fourth annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival Saturday, Paddock is confident that he can make his third Olympic team.

To concentrate on an effort for winning this Olympic berth, Paddock has announced his intention of forsaking his widely advertised meeting with Charley Borah, the University of Southern California star.

The race between Paddock and Borah was scheduled for next month on the Pacific coast, but Paddock plans to remain in the east to condition himself for the final Olympic tryouts at Boston in July.

Through mud and slush ankle deep Paddock raced 175 yards in 17 2-5 seconds at the Penn carnival, surpassing his former world's mark of 17 4-5 seconds made in Salt Lake City last year.

Meanwhile, Borah was doing the 100-yard dash in 9 3-5 seconds in the west coast relays at Fresno, Cal.

Pitted against Paddock were Polwell Scull, University of Pennsylvania football star and one of the best collegiate sprinters in the east, and two other Penn runners. They were all left far behind.

Two sections of the 10 foot wall between the track and stands collapsed in front of the runners and onto the track just as they came tearing out of the chute. Paddock, running in the lane next to the wall, was the only one menaced by the crumbling bricks and struggling humans, and he had to swerve and shift his stride to keep from colliding with a man.

Paddock at 27 is one of the running marvels of the age. He has been competing for 14 years, having won his first medal at 13. Twice a member of the Olympic team, he cannot be counted out of the competition for the Amsterdam squad until some of the younger group conquer his flying feet.

American Tobacco Co.

Profits Again Increased

For the year 1927, the annual report of The American Tobacco Company, just issued, shows a net profit of $23,309,689.16, or an increase of $746,594.93. 1926 was, up to that time, the banner year in profits.

It has been generally known that many of their brands, particularly the brand "Lucky Strike Cigarettes," have shown a large increase in sales during the year 1927, and it has been known also that very large increased amounts have been spent by The American Tobacco company in advertising.

The total earnings on the common stock ($50.00 par value) were, in 1927, $10.29 per share as against $9.90 in 1926; thus carrying, after the payment of $8.00 per share of dividends, $4,472,964.87 as an addition to surplus. The surplus at the end of 1926 was $34,948,276.40, and this addition brings it up to $39,421,241.27 at the end of 1927.

While it is not part of the treasurer's report, it is understood that the number of stockholders during the year 1927 shows a very substantial increase, there now being more than 31,000 stockholders of record in the company.

Ex-Coaster Has Great

Year With Buffalo Team

Leo A. Mangum, who won 19 games and lost 20 games for the Portland club of the Pacific Coast league in 1926, had a great season in 1927, twirling for the pennant-winning Buffalo club in the International league. Mangum turned in 21 winning games with only seven defeats for a percentage mark of .750. He led all pitchers in the percentages and was one of four to win 20 games. Mangum pitched in 35 contests and worked through 21 complete games. He twirled five shutout victories. He was credited with fanning 127 batters to place fourth in this department.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The first heavyweight fight of importance since Jack Sharkey was eliminated as a possible contender for the championship takes place at Madison Square Garden tonight when the Bostonian returns to the ring to tackle Jack Delaney of Bridgeport.

Nothing depends upon the outcome of the fight, for both Sharkey and Delaney have been stricken from the list of possible opponents for Gene Tunney. Yet there is every indication that the fans will turn out in numbers to watch the two discredited Jacks go through their gestures tonight.

Both Jacks possess more "color" than the men who defeated them and put them out of the elimination tournament last winter. Sharkey exudes it at every pore, while it has been Delaney's forte through a fairly lengthy ring career.

"In-and-outers," both of them, Sharkey and Delaney simply could not seem to make good when their big opportunities came.

Delaney, as a light heavyweight, rose to the top after some exciting battles with Paul Berlenbach. Jack stopped Mike McTigue for the first time in the ancient Celt's career. John Risko of Cleveland was one of the French-Canadian's victims; Jack Renault, Bud Gorman, Bob Fitzsimmons were others.

Yet when Rickard asked Delaney to beat Jimmy Maloney, the Boston fish monger, as a prelude to a possible match with Gene Tunney and certainly to a shot at Jack Dempsey and the real money of the prize ring, the Bridgeport Adonis dogged it and lost the decision. A few weeks later, Sharkey knocked Maloney kicking, and it since has been demonstrated that Jimmy was just a set-up for any good heavyweight in the business.

Again, when Delaney had his chance against Heenev, Jack put up a miserable showing and let the plodding New Zealander take the play quite away from him.

Sharkey, who held Heenev to a draw, then went out and blew his chance by losing to Risko, who had been beaten by both Delaney and Heenev.

It was a queer hodge-podge, the heavyweight line-up of 1927-28, but two of the queerest, most consistently unsatisfactory performers were Sharkey and Delaney. Tonight they meet in what is indeed an elimination contest. The winner is not going anywhere, but the loser will be eliminated beyond trace. Or should be.

Gene Tunney probably is smiling to himself as he contemplates the spectacle of tonight's engagement. Either Sharkey or Delaney, at his best, might have given the heavyweight champion a deal of trouble. Tom Heenev, the hirsute New Zealander, is not likely to do so.

A fine burst of speed, boxing and hitting such as Sharkey showed against Dempsey in the first round at Yankee Stadium last summer might prove sufficient to upset a Tunney who is not attuned to serious fistcuffs after a year of idleness.

A terrific right-hand wallop such as Delaney has given evidence at times of possessing might, properly applied, floor the champion for a count so long that even a Chicago referee would reach "ten" in time for the title to change hands.

Sharkey had one thing, Delaney another, but either might have proven destructive in a bout with Tunney. But both principals in tonight's affair threw away their chances, and now they are brought together with nothing at stake.

It is just a case of seeing which can be worse, under the circumstances.

CONSIDERS MITCHELL AND COMPTON BEST BETS IN ENGLISH GOLF

BRITISH OPEN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP PLAY STARTS AT SANDWICH NEXT MONDAY

By GENE SARAZEN

(Copyright 1928 by United Press)

Sandwich, Eng., April 30. — (UP) — I consider Abe Mitchell, the veteran British professional, and Archie Compston, who conquered Walter Hagen at Moor Park, the two best bets in the British open golf championship, which starts here next Monday.

It may be that some one of the Americans who are at Sandwich will win the title, but the chances are less than during the past two years when we had Bobby Jones to show the way.

Tommy Armour, our national champion, is playing wonderful golf and hitting them a mile. He will need to, for the course here is extremely long.

Bill Mehlhorn also has been going strong, and Hagen will show us today what he can do with the championship fairways and greens. Jim Barnes has not been playing well in practice, but he is getting better each day, and there always is a chance that he may repeat his 1925 triumph.

The weather here has been poor for golf—rainy and windy.

There are two courses for the qualifying rounds—the Royal St. Georges and the Prince's. I am paired with Bill Mehlhorn for the first round on Monday over the former course. The next day we play Prince's.

There is a young Argentine golfer here who should do well. His name is Jurado. While he is light and small he gets remarkable power into his shots.

Smart Simplicity Feature of Coats

Modes for Sports and General Wear Are Mostly on Tailored Lines.

There is a smartness that belongs to the garment of simple appeal that is especially pleasing to youth being exhibited in the collection of midseason coats for almost all purposes. All types of coats have been simplified, being made mostly with tailored lines. Sports coats and those for general service are very smart in tweed and the new Rodier fabrics, particularly of the kasha variety and the beautiful richly colored mixtures and figured cloths. Rodier cashmeres are especially intriguing.

The sports models almost invariably add a belt to their tailored chic. The belt may be almost any width, but it certainly lends the dash so essential to the sports mode.

While more formal coats are seen in the straight lines, they add fur to gain a semblance of sophistication and femininity. The fur may be used

Coat of Jade Green Kitten-Ear Cloth, Beaver, Collar, Cuffs, Pockets.

In luxurious collars of a long pelt, with cuffs of equal depth, or may add a shorter fur and use it in more places.

Doris Kenyon, featured motion picture player, in "The Valley of the Giants," shows her usual excellent taste in selecting a smart wardrobe. In one scene she wears a charming coat of extreme simplicity. It is of jade green kitten-ear cloth with bleached beaver used for collar, cuffs and huge patch pockets. There is a note of youth to the coat that is charmingly complemented by the feminizing touch in the elaborate fur trimming.

Fancy Trimmings Used to Embellish Gloves

Gloves in the new designs for spring show a wealth of detail in both cuffs and finish. There is a strong tendency toward color combinations, which are introduced with geometric applique, woven effects and fancy bows on the cuffs. The narrow straps on the slip-on models are finished off with novel buckles. These gloves are for general wear with semitailored and sports costumes. The colors advanced so far for early spring are the beige tones, light grays, black with white stitching and some wood shades.

The more formal glove, which made its appearance early last season in white and ivory, is here to stay and is being shown with many fancy trimmings. Narrow bracelets of pearls, shiny yellow gold or rhinestones with colored crystals are used on them, according to the color scheme. They may be removed when the gloves are sent to the cleaners. Another embellishment is a group of semiprecious stones in medallion effect, set on a flexible mounting so as not to interfere with the smooth fitting of the wrist section of the glove when it is fastened. The vogue for Chanel jewelry has been followed by the glove designers, who are exhibiting models with clasps or buttons of faceted crystals, or rows of small ones applied at the edges of the cuffs.

The Seven Seas

"The seven seas" is a figurative phrase denoting all the seas or oceans of the world. The common explanation is that the seven seas are the Arctic, Antarctic, North and South Pacific, North and South Atlantic and Indian oceans.

But this explanation is purely imaginary and superficial. The term was part of the vernacular of many nations long before some of these oceans were known to the civilized world. The seven seas are referred to in the literature of the early Hindus, Persians, Romans and Hebrews. To the Persians the seven seas were the streams forming the Oxus river, and the Hindus applied the name to bodies of water in the Punjab. Near

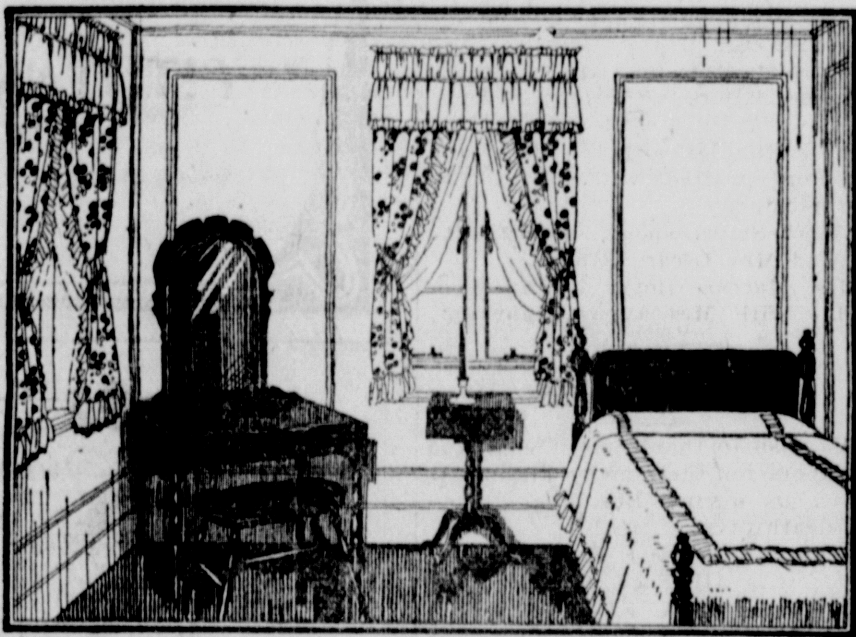

SHEER PRINTS SUMMER'S FAVORITES

The way of smart frocks for late spring and summer is printed, according to R. E. Wyett, manager of the local J. C. Penney Company who has just returned from the spring buying convention of his Company held at St. Paul.

The women are turning from the slim boyishness of past seasons and our New York stylists at the convention stressed the feminine, softer line among the latest frocks they showed.

Delicate pastel prints will grow in favor as the season advances and indications now are that the outstanding fashion for afternoon and informal evening affairs will be the sheer prints of georgette and chiffon.

Paint Vapors Sanitary

THE superiority of the modern hotel, with its light, clean, cheerful rooms, over the dark and none-too-sanitary interior of the old-time hostelry, is largely due to the discovery that the vapors thrown off by paint have sanitary properties.

The way of it was this:—In a certain laboratory having unpainted plaster walls, it was found that the cultures used in the preparation of vaccines and antitoxins became contaminated. A porous wall surface absorbs and retains moisture and collects organic matter. And these are the conditions which foster the growth of bacteria. Not until the walls of the laboratory were coated with oil-paint were successful results obtained with the cultures.

For Healthy Homes

Straightway, painted walls became the rule in hospitals, and the hotels followed suit. Then it began to be realized that sanitary interiors are equally important in the home, where cleanliness of environment is essential both to health and morale. Like the wearing of clean clothes, fresh paint in the home has a wholesome effect upon the individual.

Subsequent tests proved that the vapors from drying paint contain aldehydes, antiseptic substances which are fatal to bacilli, and consequently the painting of walls and woodwork in a room which has been occupied by a contagious disease patient is an effective way to destroy bacteria. The room should be ventilated during the painting, but closed immediately afterward, for a short time to allow the antiseptic properties of the paint-vapors to permeate everything.

Fresh paint may be said to "kill two birds with one stone." While fumigating, it also decorates.

The Body Corporate

The use of the spoken word to convey ideas distinguishes man from all other created things. It is the function of the engineer to provide for the extension of the spoken word by means of electrical systems of intercommunication which will serve to connect the nervous system of each unit of society with all of the others, thus providing an indispensable element in the structure of that inconceivably great and powerful organism which it is believed will be the ultimate outcome of the marvelous evolution which society is to undergo.—Exchange.

Erosion Formed Bridge

The Natural Bridge in Virginia was caused by stream erosion. The present structure was left by the collapse of the remainder of the roof of a tunnel formed, according to Cleland, "by water percolating through a point or fissure athwart the stream, thence along a bedding plane and emptying under a fall or rapid of the stream. The channel thus formed was gradually enlarged until all the water of the stream was diverted from the stream bed below the point of ingress, leaving the bridge."

Smart Simplicity Feature of Coats

Modes for Sports and General Wear Are Mostly on Tailored Lines.

There is a smartness that belongs to the garment of simple appeal that is especially pleasing to youth being exhibited in the collection of mid-season coats for almost all purposes. All types of coats have been simplified, being made mostly with tailored lines. Sports coats and those for general service are very smart in tweed and the new Rodier fabrics, particularly of the kasha variety and the beautiful richly colored mixtures and figured cloths. Rodier cashmeres are especially intriguing.

The sports models almost invariably add a belt to their tailored chic. The belt may be almost any width, but it certainly lends the dash so essential to the sports mode.

While more formal coats are seen in the straight lines, they add fur to gain a semblance of sophistication and femininity. The fur may be used

Coat of Jade Green Kitten-Ear Cloth, Beaver, Collar, Cuffs, Pockets.

In luxurious collars of a long pelt, with cuffs of equal depth, or may add a shorter fur and use it in more places.

Doris Kenyon, featured motion picture player, in "The Valley of the Giants," shows her usual excellent taste in selecting a smart wardrobe. In one scene she wears a charming coat of extreme simplicity. It is of jade green kitten-ear cloth with bleached beaver used for collar, cuffs and huge patch pockets. There is a note of youth to the coat that is charmingly complemented by the feminizing touch in the elaborate fur trimming.

Fancy Trimmings Used to Embellish Gloves

Gloves in the new designs for spring show a wealth of detail in both cuffs and finish. There is a strong tendency toward color combinations, which are introduced with geometric applique, woven effects and fancy bows on the cuffs. The narrow straps on the slip-on models are finished off with novel buckles. These gloves are for general wear with semitailored and sports costumes. The colors advanced so far for early spring are the beige tones, light grays, black with white stitching and some wood shades.

The more formal glove, which made its appearance early last season in white and ivory, is here to stay and is being shown with many fancy trimmings. Narrow bracelets of pearls, shiny yellow gold or rhinestones with colored crystals are used on them, according to the color scheme. They may be removed when the gloves are sent to the cleaners. Another embellishment is a group of semiprecious stones in medallion effect, set on a flexible mounting so as not to interfere with the smooth fitting of the wrist section of the glove when it is fastened. The vogue for Chanel jewelry has been followed by the glove designers, who are exhibiting models with clasps or buttons of faceted crystals, or rows of small ones applied at the edges of the cuffs.

The Seven Seas

"The seven seas" is a figurative phrase denoting all the seas or oceans of the world. The common explanation is that the seven seas are the Arctic, Antarctic, North and South Pacific, North and South Atlantic and Indian oceans.

But this explanation is purely imaginary and superficial. The term was part of the vernacular of many nations long before some of these oceans were known to the civilized world. The seven seas are referred to in the literature of the early Hindus, Persians, Romans and Hebrews. To the Persians the seven seas were the streams forming the Oxus river, and the Hindus applied the name to bodies of water in the Punjab. Near

The way of smart frocks for late spring and summer is printed, according to R. E. Wyatt, manager of the local J. C. Penney Company who has just returned from the spring buying convention of his Company held at St. Paul.

The women are turning from the slim boyishness of past seasons and our New York stylists at the convention stressed the feminine, softer line among the latest frocks they showed.

Delicate pastel prints will grow in favor as the season advances and indications now are that the outstanding fashion for afternoon and informal evening affairs will be the sheer prints of georgette and chiffon.

Paint Vapors Sanitary

THE superiority of the modern hotel, with its light, clean, cheerful rooms, over the dark and none-too-sanitary interior of the old-time hostelry, is largely due to the discovery that the vapors thrown off by paint have sanitary properties.

The way of it was this:—In a certain laboratory having unpainted plaster walls, it was found that the cultures used in the preparation of vaccines and antitoxins became contaminated. A porous wall surface absorbs and retains moisture and collects organic matter. And these are the conditions which foster the growth of bacteria. Not until the walls of the laboratory were coated with oil-paint were successful results obtained with the cultures.

For Healthy Homes

Straightway, painted walls became the rule in hospitals, and the hotels followed suit. Then it began to be realized that sanitary interiors are equally important in the home, where cleanliness of environment is essential both to health and morale. Like the wearing of clean clothes, fresh paint in the home has a wholesome effect upon the individual.

Subsequent tests proved that the vapors from drying paint contain aldehydes, antiseptic substances which are fatal to bacilli, and consequently the painting of walls and woodwork in a room which has been occupied by a contagious disease patient is an effective way to destroy bacteria. The room should be ventilated during the painting, but closed immediately afterward, for a short time to allow the antiseptic properties of the paint-vapors to permeate everything.

Fresh paint may be said to "kill two birds with one stone." While fumigating, it also decorates.

The Body Corporate

The use of the spoken word to convey ideas distinguishes man from all other created things. It is the function of the engineer to provide for the extension of the spoken word by means of electrical systems of intercommunication which will serve to connect the nervous system of each unit of society with all of the others, thus providing an indispensable element in the structure of that inconceivably great and powerful organism which it is believed will be the ultimate outcome of the marvelous evolution which society is to undergo.—Exchange.

Erosion Formed Bridge

The Natural Bridge in Virginia was caused by stream erosion. The present structure was left by the collapse of the remainder of the roof of a tunnel formed, according to Cleland, "by water percolating through a point of fissure athwart the stream, thence along a bedding plane and emptying under a fall or rapid of the stream." The channel thus formed was gradually enlarged until all the water of the stream was diverted from the stream bed below the point of ingress, leaving the bridge."

Quality! That Is Why We Have Waste-Baskets

The trash-bin is always larger than the strong-box. The waste-basket is usually twice the size of the letter-tray. Quality, or the lack of it, is what determines the importance of everything in life, whether it is shoes or sermons, poetry or pigs.

Some people claim that price is the most important consideration in our stores. They are wrong. No article ever crosses our counters that hasn't a backbone of Quality. Seconds, job lots, articles that won't wear well are too expensive in the long run for us to offer our customers.

Quality — always at a saving. This is more than a slogan with us. It is the foundation on which we built a successful business.

OIL STOVE FIRE CLAIMS VICTIM

Charred Body of Thomas Reilly Recovered From Room at 122 1st Avenue N. E.

BELIEVE STOVE EXPLODED

Fell Into Clothes Burning on Wall: Mrs. S. Jensen Puts Out Blaze

Thomas Reilly burned to death at 8 o'clock this morning in his room at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stelma Jensen, 122 First avenue N. E. when the oil stove he had started fire in to take the chill off his room exploded starting fire to clothes hanging on the wall.

His charred body was found lying against the door of his room by Mrs. Jensen who put out the fire by throwing a pail of water on it.

Mrs. Jensen in explaining the tragedy stated that she heard Mr. Reilly get up from his bed shortly before 8 o'clock, and presumed that he was dressing to come downstairs for breakfast. As she called him for breakfast she smelled smoke and opened the door to find the room occupied by Mr. Reilly filled with smoke and flames. She was able to extinguish the flames by throwing a pail of water on them.

Mrs. Jensen stated that in her opinion the fire started in the room when Mr. Reilly presumably had attempted to refill the kerosene container on the stove, with kerosene while the stove was lit. The position of Mr. Reilly's body when found indicated that he had fallen into the fire which spread to clothes on the wall.

Coroner D. E. Whitney stated this morning that an inquest would be unnecessary as it was evident that the tragedy was one of accidental burning.

Mr. Reilly had lived at the Jensen home, rooming and boarding there, for the past five years. He was unmarried and was an employee of the Northwest Paper Co.

Mr. Reilly was 68 years old. He was born in County Mayo, Ireland.

He is survived by five sisters, Mrs. Anna Loftus, San Francisco, Mrs. H. P. Dunn, Mrs. J. A. Bachelder, Mrs. Frank Lowey, Mrs. Harry O'Brien, and three brothers, P. M. Reilly, Seattle, Wash., W. C. Reilly, of Havre, Mont., and M. J. Reilly, of Detroit Lakes.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed as yet.

OIL STOVE FIRE CLAIMS VICTIM

Charred Body of Thomas Reilly Recovered From Room at 122 1st Avenue N. E.

BELIEVE STOVE EXPLODED

Fell Into Clothes Burning on Wall; Mrs. S. Jensen Puts Out Blaze

Thomas Reilly burned to death at 8 o'clock this morning in his room at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Steima Jensen, 122 First avenue N. E. when the oil stove he had started fire in to take the chill off his room exploded starting fire to clothes hanging on the wall.

His charred body was found lying against the door of his room by Mrs. Jensen who put out the fire by throwing a pail of water on it.

Mrs. Jensen in explaining the tragedy stated that she heard Mr. Reilly get up from his bed shortly before 8 o'clock and presumed that he was dressing to come downstairs for breakfast. As she called him for breakfast she smelled smoke and opened the door to find the room occupied by Mr. Reilly filled with smoke and flames. She was able to extinguish the flames by throwing a pail of water on them.

Mrs. Jensen stated that in her opinion the fire started in the room when Mr. Reilly presumably had attempted to refill the kerosene container on the stove, with kerosene while the stove was lit. The position of Mr. Reilly's body when found indicated that he had fallen into the fire which spread to clothes on the wall.

Coroner D. E. Whitney stated this morning that an inquest would be unnecessary as it was evident that the tragedy was one of accidental burning.

Mr. Reilly had lived at the Jensen home, rooming and boarding there, for the past five years. He was unmarried and was an employee of the Northwest Paper Co.

Mr. Reilly was 68 years old. He was born in County Mayo, Ireland. He is survived by five sisters, Mrs. Anna Loftus, San Francisco, Mrs. H. P. Dunn, Mrs. J. A. Bachelder, Mrs. Frank Lowey, Mrs. Harry O'Brien, and three brothers, P. M. Reilly, Seattle, Wash., W. C. Reilly, of Havre, Mont., and M. J. Reilly, of Detroit Lakes.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed as yet.

GERMANS REPLY TO U. S. ANTI- WAR TREATY

OFFER TO BEGIN NEGOTIATIONS
IMMEDIATELY ON PROPOSALS
FOR PACT

CALCULATED TO BRING WORLD
NEARER TO GOAL OF OUT-
LAWING WAR

By FREDERICK KUH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Berlin, April 30.—Germany's reply to the United States anti-war treaty proposal offers to begin negotiations immediately and expresses the belief that the American proposal is calculated to bring the world nearer its goal of outlawing war.

The treaty will be published tomorrow.
The importance of the pact is emphasized and the opportunity to begin negotiations for it is welcomed.
The main ideas behind the French initial move toward an anti-war treaty and the resulting American proposal coincide with the principles of German policy.

Germany's paramount interest is to see the possibility of war eliminated and peaceful adjustment of international quarrels assured. Germany declares that realization of the United States proposals is calculated to bring that goal nearer.

While stressing the inviolability of the League of Nations covenant and the Locarno treaties among the principal world powers, Germany declares that neither impose obligations which in any way conflict with Kellogg's proposals but indeed would strengthen the peaceful tendency both of the covenant and the Locarno pact.

The outlawry of war treaty would not jeopardize any nation's right of self-defense.

Germany's only reservation is that if one nation violated the pact the other signatories should retain their freedom of action, so that nations affected by violation of the treaty could go to war against the disturber of the peace.

The reply indicates that Germany believes it would be superfluous for the pact to contain provisions regarding the eventual violation of the pact. She agrees with the United States that the pact must be universal, not confined to a few nations.

It suggests that as soon as the United States, France, Germany, Japan and Italy sign such a pact other nations will join.

In conclusion, the German reply expresses confidence that the pact will give fresh impetus to the disarmament movement.

London, April 30.—Great Britain warmly welcomes the United States proposal for a treaty to outlaw war. Foreign Secretary Chamberlain said in the house of commons today.

The proposal was being studied closely and sympathetically, Chamberlain said, along with the French observations on it.

GERMANS REPLY TO U. S. ANTI- WAR TREATY

OFFER TO BEGIN NEGOTIATIONS
IMMEDIATELY ON PROPOSALS
FOR PACT

CALCULATED TO BRING WORLD
NEARER TO GOAL OF OUT-
LAWING WAR

By FREDERICK KUIH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Berlin, April 30.—Germany's reply to the United States anti-war treaty proposal offers to begin negotiations immediately and expresses the belief that the American proposal is calculated to bring the world nearer its goal of outlawing war.

The treaty will be published tomorrow.

The importance of the pact is emphasized and the opportunity to begin negotiations for it is welcomed.
The main ideas behind the French initial move toward an anti-war treaty and the resulting American proposal coincide with the principles of German policy.

Germany's paramount interest is to see the possibility of war eliminated and peaceful adjustment of international quarrels assured. Germany declares that realization of the United States proposals is calculated to bring that goal nearer.

While stressing the inviolability of the League of Nations covenant and the Locarno treaties among the principal world war powers, Germany declares that neither impose obligations which in any way conflict with Kellogg's proposals but indeed would strengthen the peaceful tendency both of the covenant and the Locarno pact.

The outlawry of war treaty would not jeopardize any nation's right of self-defense.

Germany's only reservation is that if one nation violated the pact the other signatories should retain their freedom of action, so that nations affected by violation of the treaty could go to war against the disturber of the peace.

The reply indicates that Germany believes it would be superfluous for the pact to contain provisions regarding the eventual violation of the pact. She agrees with the United States that the pact must be universal, not confined to a few nations.

It suggests that as soon as the United States, France, Germany,
Japan and Italy sign such a pact other nations will join.

In conclusion, the German reply expresses confidence that the pact will give fresh impetus to the disarmament movement.

London, April 30.—Great Britain
warmly welcomes the United States proposal for a treaty to outlaw war.
Foreign Secretary Chamberlain said in the house of commons today.

The proposal was being studied closely and sympathetically, Chamberlain said, along with the French observations on it.
